CAREER ASSESSMENTS

If you are entering the workforce for the first time or considering a career change, completing a Career Assessment is often a logical and informative starting point.

Career Assessments provide relevant suggestions by focusing on values, interests, personality, natural talents and personal preferences. The following list includes several online and workbook Career Assessment tools.

CAREER NAVIGATOR

Through the Career Quizzes you can explore your abilities, interests and preferences as part of making a career decision. The Learning Style Quizzes can be used to make any learning situation work for you. Quizzes include Abilities, Data-People-Things, Work Preferences, Multiple Intelligence, Seeing-Hearing-Doing and Work Values. You can also obtain information on making career decisions, career counselors and how you learn best.

THE HARRINGTON-O'SHEA CAREER DECISION-MAKING SYSTEM

The award-winning Career Decision-Making System (CD-MS) provides a self-scored assessment that helps students and other career planners identify their occupational interests, values and abilities – and match these dimensions to career options. This contemporary tool pinpoints career clusters and yields results that can be linked to future job area interests and opportunities. (CD-MS) has been used by millions of students and other individuals preparing to enter the job market, and those who are returning to the workplace or considering changing career directions.
